Do you need a Travel Advisor?

We see this question all of the time. Why do I need a travel advisor (TA)? Here's some of the reasons why we suggest you use one.

- They save you time. TA's can do the leg work for you. Instead of you spending countless hours searching the internet, you can define where you want to go, give them a budget and let them use their expertise to plan your vacation.
- They can save you money. TA's get access to special rates, especially ones that belong to a large consortium. Reputable suppliers and vendors use these consortiums and offer rates that are discounted to attract the clients of the TA's.
- Plans change and stuff happens. TA's are your advocate when you need to make changes or something happens during your trip. They have access to tools and services that the average consumer does not.
- TA's usually cost you nothing to use. They get paid directly from the suppliers and vendors. The pricing they quote will be the same or better than what can be found online. They may charge for their services if what you need or want requires excessive time or expertise. They should let you know the fees ahead of time.

When searching for a travel advisor, make sure they can provide you with all of the services you need BEFORE booking anything with them. There are agents that will only book certain portions of a trip, especially ones that only do cruises. They may not want to assist you with hotels or flights for your trip because there may not be commissions attached to these.

What our clients are up to?

Have you ever wanted to visit the beautiful countries of Scandinavia? This area is full of deep history and rich culture.

This area is often ranked highly with some of the most beautiful scenery in the world. You will find volcanos, ice caves and glacier lakes. Along with dramatic mountains, fjords and dense forests.

One of our clients is spending some time discovering this part of Northern Europe. They're starting their trip in Copenhagen with a 15 day land tour taking them to the capital cities of Denmark, Sweden, Norway and Finland.

From there, they will embark on the Holland America Nieuw Statendam for a 7 night cruise from Copenhagen to Reykjavik, Iceland, which includes cruising through Norwegian and Icelandic fjords as well as multiple stops in Norway and Iceland.

Where in the World is Jeff & Dianna?

Our current adventure is a multi-destination trip that started in Galveston, TX. We boarded the Voyager of the Seas, a Royal Caribbean ship. After a couple of sea days, the ship made its first stop in Nassau, Bahamas. Then six sea days that allowed us to do some work, lounge by the pool and enjoy the amenities that the ship has to offer.

The 11th day of the cruise had us make port in Ponta Delgada, Portugal. On the island of Sao Miguel. We did a 2 1/2 mile hike along the rim of a dormant volcano. It's now an alpine lake (pictured above) and sits next to the village of Sete Cidades.

We look forward to helping you plan your next vacation.
